

Patty B.

What a hero is to me is someone who risks their life for other people they do not know. People like firemen and policemen risk their lives everyday. Firemen go into dangerous fires to save many people. Sometimes they go into dangers way just to find one person, yet they save that one life. Policemen work to protect hundreds of people they might never meet. They take care of dangerous people who want to do bad. Policemen and Firemen work together to protect everyone. Whether they know the people they save or not. I learned the meaning of a hero from my father. He served as a fireman saving people he never met again. My dad fell through roofs and floors. He got to go to the hospital, but he kept working until he got diabetes. Dad always told me if he didn't have diabetes he would still be working in the fire station today.